A screenshot of a web browser displaying a registration page. The browser's address bar shows the URL `localhost/login/register.php`. The page has a light green background. On the left, there is a large red rectangle containing a white airplane icon. On the right, a white box titled "Register Now" contains the following form elements: four input fields labeled "Enter Your Name", "Enter Your Email", "Enter Your Password", and "Enter Your Confirm Password", followed by a red "Register" button. Below the button, there is a link that says "Have an account? Login.".

A second screenshot of the same registration page, showing the state after a registration attempt. The browser's address bar still shows `localhost/login/register.php`. The red rectangle with the airplane icon remains on the left. The white "Register Now" box now displays a red message box at the top that says "We've send a verification link on your email address." Below this message, the form fields are pre-filled with the following values: "Jeya" in the Name field, "jeyaprasanna63@gmail.com" in the Email field, and empty fields for Password and Confirm Password. The red "Register" button is still visible at the bottom of the form.
